RE: Docket No. 2005-385-E

Dear Mr. Terreni:

Progress Energy Carolinas, Inc. has received the Direct Testimony of David Wach. It is unclear from the cover letter as well as the testimony itself on whose behalf Mr. Wach is testifying. It is also unclear what role is being played by John Hardaway, the attorney who signed the transmittal letter. Mr. Hardaway states in the transmittal letter that he is filing the testimony of Mr. Wach "on behalf of myself and Pamela Greenlaw, another of the intervenors. I am not acting in a representative capacity for any party other than myself." It would appear that Mr. Hardaway is attempting to adopt or present the testimony of Mr. Wach.

Mr. Wach's testimony itself seems to fluctuate between suggesting that Mr. Wach is testifying solely for himself (see page 1, lines 15-17 where Mr. Wach states "I have as a purpose for this testimony the provision of my opinions ... (emphasis added)), to other places where he appears to be testifying on behalf of his employer Hoffman-La Roche. No where in the testimony does Mr. Wach indicate that he is testifying on behalf of Mr. Hardaway.

It is important for all parties to identify on whose behalf they are testifying. Therefore, PEC asks that the Commission direct Mr. Hardaway, Mr. Wach and all other witnesses to do so.

Very truly yours,

/s/

Len S. Anthony
